The gates and the linked chain fence were extensively damaged (ct 1). Brooks drove a stolen truck to the entry of a business. After cutting the lock to a gate he drove to a parked caravan valued at $45,000 and hitched the caravan to the back of his vehicle. As he drove away the chain snapped, so he left, leaving the caravan behind (ct 2). At a car wash Brooks, driving the same stolen truck, reversed at speed into two industrial vacuum units causing $29,358.20 in damage. He and his male passenger then att unsuccessfully to take one of the units. They left and returned a short time later with a chisel and hammer, which they used to separate one of the units from its base. They then carried it to the truck and left (cts 3 and 4). During a burglary, a dinghy, boat trailer, boat engine and a fuel jerry can were stolen. Brooks arranged to store a boat at a rural property. The same day Brooks attended the same rural property with the stolen bobcat to store it at the property. The bobcat was tracked to its location and police were alerted. A search of the property located the stolen bobcat (cts 5 and 6). Brooks was apprehended in connection with an armed robbery (the Supreme Court offence). He was conveyed to a police station and detained. His partner was also held in the same detention area. The two shouted at each other and became increasingly agitated. When an officer opened his cell door he grabbed the officer and during a struggle took the officer's swipe card. After freeing his partner he ran away (cts 7-10). After fleeing custody Brooks ran in front of a vehicle, opened the driver's door, grabbed hold of the driver and tried to forcibly remove her from the car. Fearing for herself and her passenger she accelerated away (ct 11).	cts 1-4 serious and premeditated acts of dishonesty; it would have been a terrifying experience for the victims of cts 11 and 12, were ordinary members of the community going about their daily business; the offending necessitated a sentence that sufficiently denounced the appellant's conduct and provided appropriate personal and general deterrence.	them involved appalling offending that would have terrified or endangered members of the public. Further, [he] used violence to escape from legal custody. ... the appellant's offending the subject of cts 7 – 12 of itself would ordinarily have justified and required a TES substantially higher than the TES ... imposed ... in the District Court. As the judge observed, cts 11 and 12 were each very serious offences in which the appellant used violence towards entirely innocent members of the public in an att to steal their cars, the second att of which was successful. ... Other elements of the appellant's offending were also serious. ... the two home burglaries, ... were both serious offences warranting substantial terms of imp.

			Brooks then got in the passenger seat of a stationary vehicle. He shouted at the driver to go and, fearing for his safety, he complied. He ignored the driver's request to get out and became more agitated. At a red light he told the driver to get out, which he did. Brooks threatened the driver if he called the police. The vehicle was later found extensively damaged (ct 12). Brooks gained entry to a home by smashing a sliding door. He cut the phone line and searched a bedroom. He left the premises by forcing open a rear window. No items were stolen (ct 13). On the same day Brooks broke into a different residence. The occupants were home at the time. Manipulating a locked door he entered the premises and stole an iPhone, a laptop and the keys to a vehicle. Using the car keys he stole the occupants vehicle. He was later seen by police driving the vehicle and failed to stop when requested to do so, leading to a police pursuit (cts 14-15).		At [126] ... the [District Court] judge did not err in failing to award a 25% discount for the appellant's PG. Indeed, it was not open to the judge to have done so.
