

English is not my first language - how can I access OPA information?

This is an easy read factsheet.

This means we use pictures to help explain words.

The Office of the Public Advocate (OPA) wrote this factsheet. When you see the word 'we' it means the people who work at OPA.

You can ask someone to help you read this factsheet.

You can read our Hard Word factsheet if you need more help.

We wrote this factsheet to explain how non-English speaking people can get OPA information.

Things you will need to understand.

An OPA publication tells you things about OPA.

A translated publication is the same thing – but it is written in a different language.

An interpreter is someone who speaks two or more languages.

An interpreter can help you understand English.

How to use the website if English is your second language.

OPA has information to help you.

Information helps you understand how something works.

If you do not speak English, you can access OPA information in your language.

There is a translate button on our website.

It can be found at the top right-hand side of the website.

It is on every page.

The translate button looks like this.

It is black. There is a small white circle next to the underlined word 'Language'.

Click on the button and choose your language.

The website page is then translated for you.

How to access translated publications.

Some OPA publications are written in different languages.

You can find Translated Publications on the OPA website.

Publications and Translations

- Publications
- Translated Publications
- First Nations Audio Translations

They can be found below Publications and Translations.

If the publication is not written in your language, OPA can do this for you.

How to access First Nations Audio Translations.

You can listen to information that is translated into five different Aboriginal languages on our website.

This information is called First Nations Audio Translations.

- Translated Publications
- First Nations Audio Translations

You can find it below Publications and Translations.

Or you can scan this QR Code.

- Choose a language.
- Choose the information you want to listen to.
- Press play and listen.

If your language is not on the list, you can ask OPA to help with a new translation.

How to fill out EPA or EPG forms if English is your second language.

An Enduring Power of Attorney and an Enduring Power of Guardianship are legal planning forms.

These can also be called an EPA and EPG.

You can find information about EPAs and EPGs on the OPA website.

If you want to make an EPA or EPG you must fill out the forms.

 Two sample forms side-by-side. The left one is 'Enduring power of attorney' and the right one is 'Enduring Power of Guardianship'. Both forms have a blue header and contain various fields for personal information, appointment details, and legal declarations.

EPA and EPG forms can look like this.

You can find them at the back of our EPA and EPG kits.

EPA and EPG kits look like this.

EPA and EPG forms cannot be translated into a different language.

They must be filled out in English.

You can get an interpreter to help you fill out these forms in English.

If an interpreter helps you, you must both sign a page called The Marksman clause.

The Marksman clause page can be found in the EPA and EPG kits.

It is on a page called Appendix C.

Filling out this page shows that an interpreter helped you.

Other ways to access OPA information.

If you have a meeting with OPA and you need an interpreter, OPA can arrange this.

It is important that everybody has access to OPA information.
