Overview

Annual statistical reporting

The Freedom of Information Act 1992 (WA) (FOI Act) requires the Information Commissioner to report to the Western Australian Parliament on the operation of the FOI Act each year. This includes statistics on agencies' freedom of information activity.

To help prepare the annual report, all agencies are required to provide the Information Commissioner with the information needed for reporting through an annual statistical return. In total, there were 256 responses to this year's annual statistical return. The following agencies did not complete the annual statistical return: Shire of Cuballing and Shire of Halls Creek.

Agencies are asked to report on the following matters:

- the number of access applications received and dealt with
- the number of decisions to:
 - give access to documents
 - give access to edited copies of documents
 - defer giving access to documents
 - give access to a document in the manner referred to in section 28 (to medical and psychiatric information)
 - refuse access to documents
- the number of times each exemption clause in Schedule 1 to the FOI Act was claimed to refuse access to documents
- the number of applications for internal review of an agency's access decision, and the outcomes of the reviews
- the number of applications for amendment of personal information received and dealt with
- the number of decisions:
 - to amend
 - not to amendpersonal information in accordance with an application
- the number of applications for internal review of an agency's amendment decision, and the outcomes of the reviews
- the amount of application fees and charges collected
- details of charges reduced or waived.

Agency statistics

Access applications received

This table shows how many valid access applications each agency received during the reporting period.

A valid access application is a written freedom of information request that provides enough information to identify the requested documents, includes an Australian address for notices, and is lodged with the agency with any required application fee.

Outcomes of access applications

This table shows the outcomes of valid access applications where the agency made a decision. It does not include applications that were later withdrawn.

For a valid FOI application, the agency may:

- give full access to all requested documents
- give partial access, with some information removed
- approve access but delay providing the documents where immediate access is not appropriate (section 25)
- provide access through a medical practitioner where providing the documents directly to the applicant could be harmful to their health or wellbeing (section 28)
- refuse access because the requested documents cannot be found or do not exist (section 26)
- refuse access to all requested documents
- refuse to process the application where the work involved in dealing with it would divert a substantial and unreasonable portion of the agency's resources away from its other operations (section 20).

Outcomes of internal reviews

An access applicant or third party can ask an agency to review its decision if they are dissatisfied with the original decision.

This table shows the number of internal review applications each agency received and the outcomes of finalised internal review applications.

Internal review is not available on a decision made by a Minister or the principal officer of an agency.

Note: Agencies may carry-over applications from previous years.

Application fees and charges collected

The table below shows the application fees and charges collected for 'non-personal' access applications. A 'non-personal' access application is an access application that asks for information other than information about the applicant themselves.

For applications seeking other information, a $30 application fee is payable. Agencies may also charge applicants for processing these applications, but this is at the agency's discretion and subject to the FOI Act and Freedom of Information Regulations 1993 (WA).

Applicants do not pay fees or charges when they request only their own personal information.

Charges reduced

Agencies do not have to charge applicants for processing an access application. If an agency chooses to charge an applicant, it must reduce the charge by 25% if the applicant has limited financial means or holds certain concession cards. The agency may choose to reduce the charge further or waive it entirely.

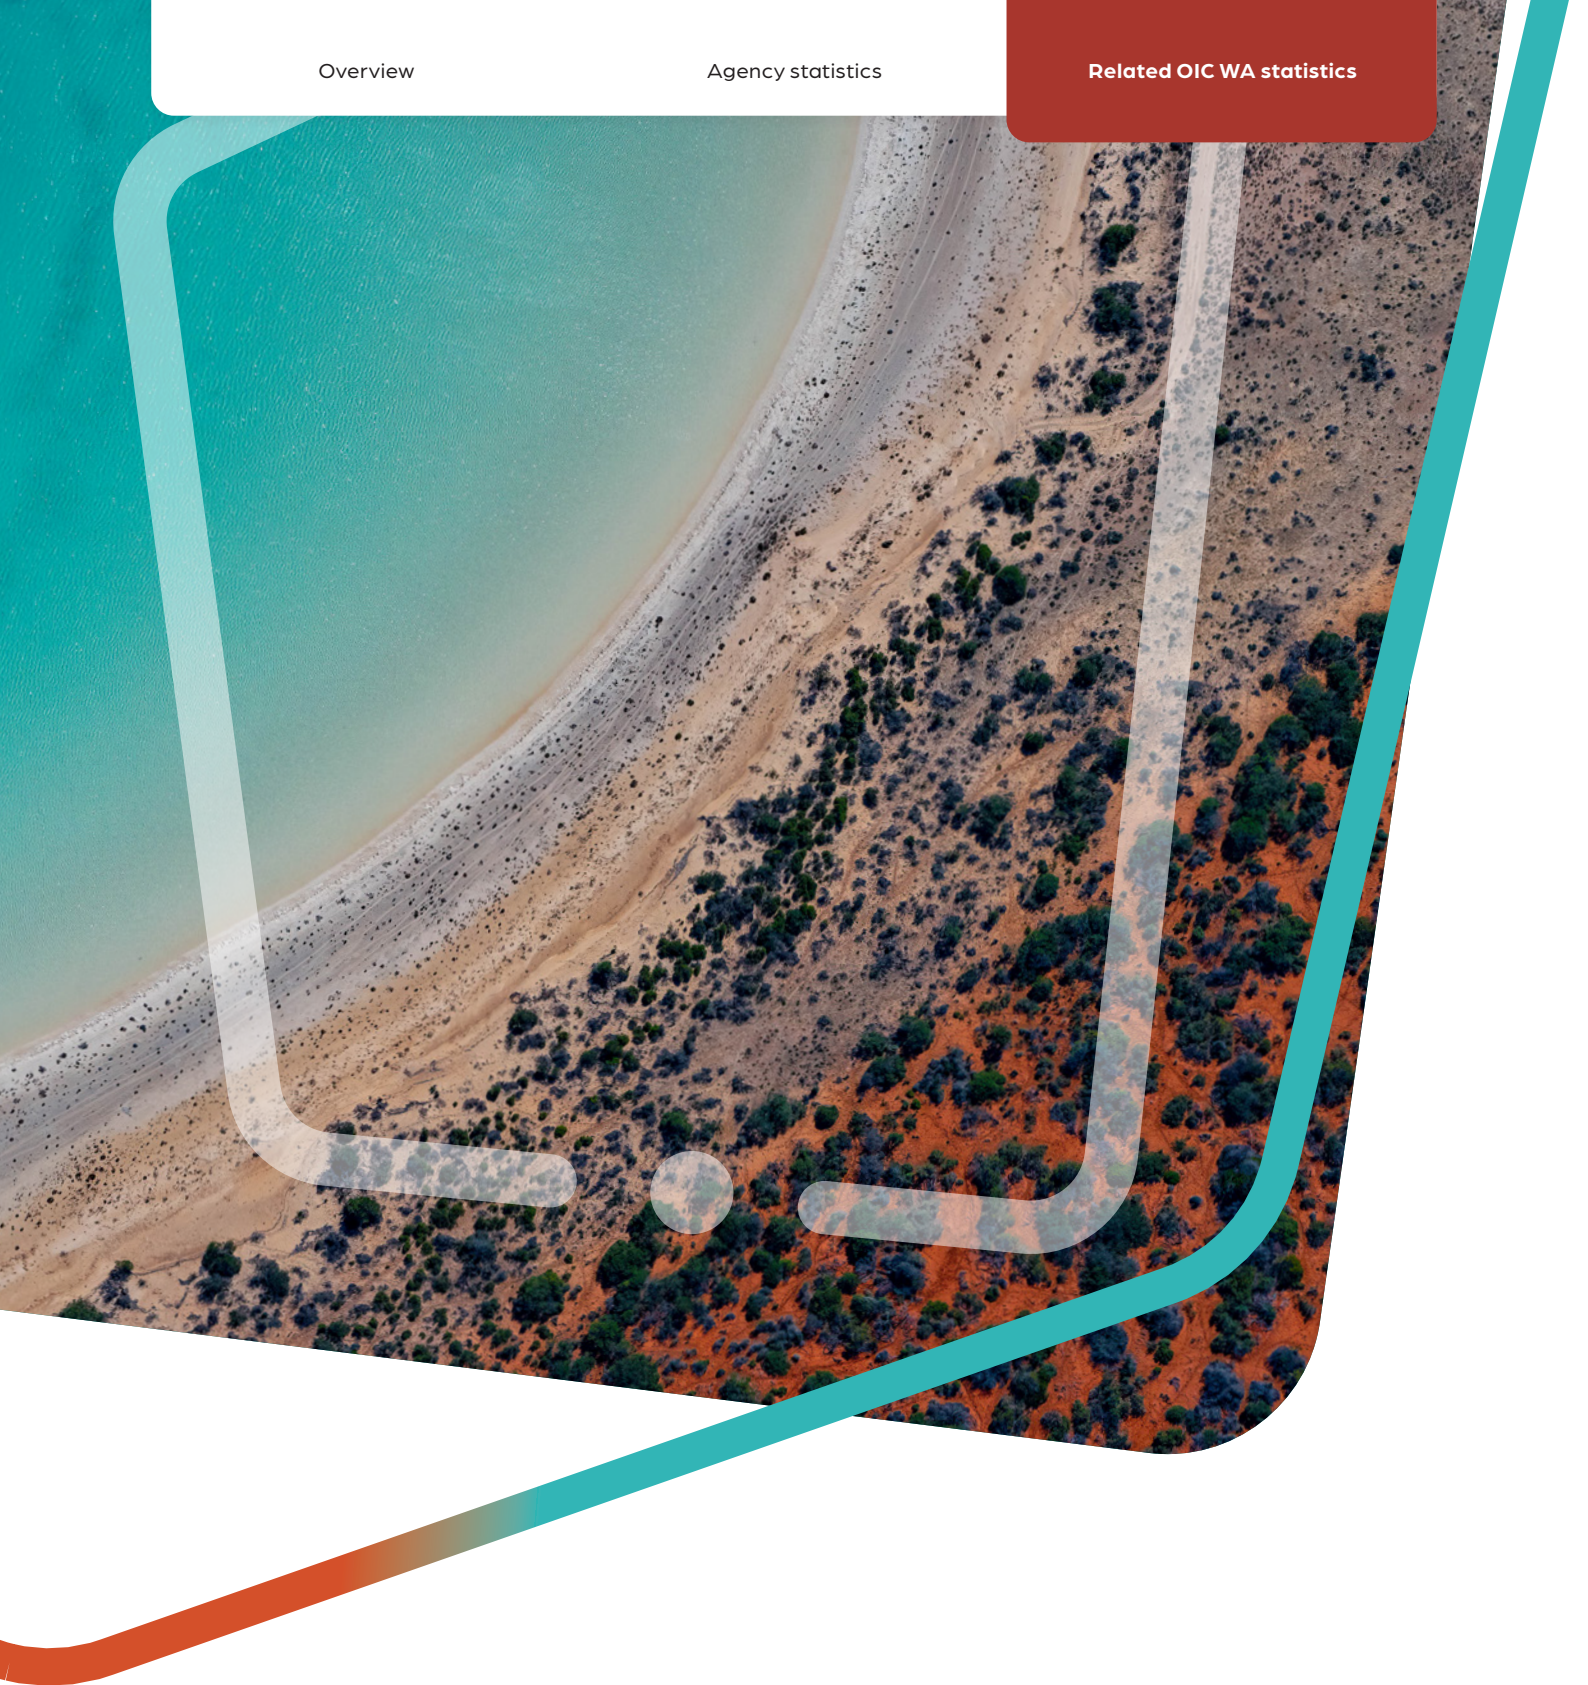

This table shows any reduction in charges and the reasons for such reduction.

External review applications

The table below shows the number of external review applications the OIC WA received for each agency during the reporting period.

The FOI Act also requires the Information Commissioner to report on:

- the number of external review applications made to the Commissioner and the outcomes of the applications
- the number of other applications made to the Commissioner and the outcomes of those applications
- the number of appeals to the Supreme Court and the results of those appeals.

The following is the statistical data relating to external review applications and other applications made to the OIC WA during the reporting period. Details of Supreme Court appeals are reported in part 1.

Other applications

In addition to external review applications, the OIC WA deals with other types of applications under the FOI Act. These include:

- applications to reduce the time for dealing with an access application (sections 13(4))
- applications to extend the time for dealing with an access application (section 13(5) or 13(7))
- applications to waive the requirement to consult with third parties (section 35(1))
- applications to accept an external review application made out of time (section 66(4))
- applications to accept an external review application without an internal review (section 66(6))
- applications for a destruction certificate under section 48(3).

The table below shows the number of these matters the OIC WA received during the financial year.

Note: There were no applications for consultation waiver under section 35(1) or for a destruction certificate under section 48(3).
