State Records Office - Archives Information Sheet

House Plans: City of Stirling

While most municipalities had the plans of houses built in their area deposited with them, the only series of note which has so far come to the State Records Office is from the City of Stirling. The State Records Office holds plans of houses built in the City of Stirling (then called the Perth Road Board) for the period 29 August 1917 to 30 April 1947.

Index to Building Applications (Plans)

Researchers or renovators who wish to obtain a copy of one of these a house plans should first check the State Records Office's online index.

To find a plan, you need to know the street name and lot number. The index covers the period 1917 - 1951 (although actual plans cease in 1947). If your property is listed in the index, note the:

- Application Number; and
- Date of Application.

Building Applications (Plans)

The following list provides references to the microfilm reels containing the building applications (plans). These microfilm copies can be accessed on the 3rd floor of the State Library / State Archives. Digital copies of a plan can be made from the microfilm.

It should be noted that not all applications include a plan, not all plans are numbered, and some numbers are duplicated. Building applications also include later additions to an existing property, such as extensions, alterations or garages. Included are residential, commercial and other (e.g. schools) plans.
